Indiana University Kelley School of Business Indianapolis invites applications for positions in Accounting beginning in August 2013 or January 1, 2014. Applications are encouraged for clinical and lecturer positions at all ranks. We anticipate filling at least one position.

We are seeking faculty at a clinical or lecturer rank with an emphasis in teaching tax accounting. Faculty will teach in our Master of Science Taxation, Master of Science Accounting (http://kelley.iu.edu/gap/) and undergraduate accounting program (http://kelley.iupui.edu/degrees/undergrad/academics/majors/accounting/). A terminal degree from an accredited institution is preferred for clinical and lecturer appointments, as is evidence of scholarly activity and professional certification.

Indiana University’s Kelley School of Business provides programs in two locations: Bloomington and Indianapolis. Indianapolis programs are located on the campus of Indiana University Purdue University Indianapolis (IUPUI). Indianapolis is the twelfth largest city in the United States with a metropolitan population of over one and a half million. Indianapolis is the home of Indiana State Government, and it is considered to be one of America's most livable urban centers and a burgeoning center for R&D. The campus’ location, within blocks of downtown Indianapolis, facilitates advancement of research and teaching while presenting unique opportunities for internships, partnerships, community engagement, and more. With four professional sports teams, several world class museums, robust ethnic cuisine and a vibrant downtown, Indianapolis is the fastest growing major metropolitan area in the Midwest.

IUPUI is Indiana’s premier urban research university and a core campus of Indiana University. It is a unique and highly successful forty-one year old joint venture between Indiana University and Purdue University. It enrolls over 30,000 students representing all 50 states and 122 countries. In 2004, IUPUI set a record for fundraising at a public university in Indiana by raising over $1 billion, and the current campaign, begun in 2010, has a goal of over $1.2 billion (with $1 billion already raised). In the most recent academic year, IUPUI received nearly $300 million in research dollars. IUPUI consists of twenty schools and academic units including the Purdue School of Science, as well as the Indiana University’s Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, Informatics, Business, Law, and Liberal Arts. The Indiana School of Medicine is the second largest in the country.

The Kelley School of Business Indianapolis has over 1,700 students (1,100 undergraduate and 600 masters) and over 55 full-time faculty. It offers undergraduate, MBA, MSA, and MST degrees. Information regarding the Indianapolis programs can be found at: http://kelley.iupui.edu/. As an institution located in a vibrant city atmosphere, the school provides excellent opportunities for a career and high quality of life.

The Kelley School has consistently been ranked among the top-20 MBA programs in the world. The Evening MBA program in Indianapolis was recently ranked in the top 10 part time MBA programs in the United States, and the MST program was recently ranked as a top 10 program. The Kelley School has an excellent repertoire of in-residence (part-time in Indianapolis and full-time in Bloomington), online (Kelley Direct) and executive programs. Students in the MSA and MST programs may elect full-time or part-time options.

Qualified applicants should submit electronically their cover letter of application, including a list of three references, and vita/resume to Sherri Hendricks, email: slhendri@iupui.edu (Indiana University, Kelley School of Business). Recruiting Committee Chair is John M. Hassell, Professor of Accounting and OneAmerica Chair (jhassell@iupui.edu). Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.
